Description:

Small innovative companies have important roles to play in NASA's Moon to Mars exploration approach. Listen to representatives from three of NASA's mission directorates discuss the new technologies, capabilities, and business approaches that will take humans to the lunar surface and then on to explore farther into the solar system. This 2019 panel was moderated by a successful NASA SBIR recipient company that is working closely with the Agency on technologies to support exploration of the Moon and Mars.
